JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime

Minister Menachem Begin Thursday invited the U.S.-based Olympic Committee to join the International Olympic Committee members in a meeting next week. The meeting is scheduled for April 19.

Begin expressed the hope that the Olympic Committee will decide whether to nominate the three committees of the American Olympic Committee for the position of chief country this year not to go to Moscow for the Olympic Games," Begin said.

He was speaking to 89 dele gates from 13 countries attending a conference here of the World Union for Progressive Sport, representing more than 11.5 million Reform Jews worldwide. The United States Olympic Committee announced its boycott of the Moscow games was final because the Soviets failed to withdraw their troops from Afghanistan by Washington's Feb. 22 deadline.

Begin made his remarks about Israel's participation in the Olympics in the atmosphere surrounding the Second session of Afghanistan. He said President Carter's de decision to withdraw the decision was made at a moral point of view.

Begin said the boycott will be a total boycott, but he did not say if he would not come to the United States. Russia's boycott decision was made at a moral point of view.

The Oklahoman, March 5, 1973.

It was also the battle that was to become the basis for the 147-year-old term "Iwo Jima Day".

Mormon Church Does It Again

Mormon Church Has Been Persecuted for More Than a Century

The Mormon Church, which was founded by Joseph Smith in 1830, has been subjected to persecution and discrimination throughout its history. The persecution has ranged from legal discrimination to physical violence and has been a recurring theme in the church's history.

In the late 19th century, the church was targeted by the federal government, which passed laws that prohibited polygamy and other religious practices. The church was also targeted by state and local governments, which used law enforcement to try to shut down the church's operations.

In the 20th century, the church was targeted by the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist groups, which burned churches and threatened the lives of church members. The church was also targeted by the federal government, which has repeatedly sought to shut down the church's operations on the grounds that it is a tax-exempt organization.

In the 21st century, the church has been targeted by the Clinton administration, which has sought to prosecute church leaders on charges of tax evasion. The church has also been targeted by the Obama administration, which has sought to shut down the church's operations on the grounds that it is a tax-exempt organization.

Noble shares little with 'Benson role'

By Vernon Scott

BARB HANCOCK (UPI) — James Noble, who plays the gay bar without Governor Gattis
in the California film, is a relieved and wary
man who has little in common with the bustling,
well-dressed politician.

Noble is a Teuton who switched schools and changed planes at the last minute, heading to engineering at North Texas Agricultural College in Indiana, Montana where the Nobles now make their home.

But the family is still in the process of becoming accustomed to living in California
after moving from their permanent home in Levon, N.J., where they've lived out.

Noble is the head of the Barns College apartment which Gils and Carolyne are taking in their first year of saving. They've bought some antiques and other pieces they plan to use back home, if and when they return to
New Jersey.

Meanwhile, Jim enjoys regular strolls along the beach, happy in the knowledge that he has plenty of time to make his own way. He looks forward to starting school in the fall, and then on to that big, blue, beautiful city of Los Angeles, far from the crows of the nest of bitches.

Noble is an unmourned reader of novels,
biographies and scientific subjects who says he leaves them in the hands of his wife, Carolyne,
to collect whenever he feels like it.

He describes his work schedule as: "Civil lined." The series is filmed at the ABC studios at the far end of the Hollywood — a good place to drive in, to think big, and see boats on any given Sunday, and then to salute the discipline, to walk back to the beach, or to fish, or to play.

Weekends are spent watching sports on TV and attending meetings. Carolyne and Jim still are interested in clothes, but they've been busy buying and selling their own so as to earn a living. Carolyne is always on the shopping or cooking or something else that has less to be carried for by their tenants back in New Jersey.

Both Jim and Carolyne miss the east coast, but they've found that life is much nicer in the west.

Hollywood is where show business
starts, and the show business starts here."

BULGARIA (UPI) — Very soon the 1979 Oscar nominees for Best Picture will be announced. The ceremony, which is traditionally held in Los Angeles, will be held in Hollywood on March 28th.

By far, the most likely Best Picture nominee is "All That Jazz." The film, which stars Roy Scheider and is directed by Brian De Palma, has been widely acclaimed by critics and is expected to sweep the comedy categories.

"All That Jazz" stars De Palma in a dual role as both a director and an actor. The film tells the story of a successful director who, in his middle age, begins to develop symptoms of Alzheimer's disease.

The film is a tribute to De Palma's career, and it has been praised for its bold and innovative approach to storytelling.

Other films that are expected to receive nominations include "Beverly Hills Cop" and "Young Frankenstein." Both films are expected to be strong contenders in the Best Picture category.

The Academy Awards ceremony is held annually to honor the best in film. It is one of the most prestigious events in the entertainment industry.
D.B. Cooper 'find' Boosts new book

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Author J.D. Reed, whose novel, "Free Fall," is based on the true story of bank robber D.B. Cooper, is in the news again.

Reed's new book, "Free Fall," is due out soon, and Cooper's name has been revived by the author.

"The Cooper story is still a mystery, and the new book is expected to shed light on the case.

The author, who is a former FBI agent, has been researching the case for years and has interviewed numerous people involved in the investigation.

As a result of his research, Reed has reached some new conclusions about the identity of Cooper and the circumstances surrounding his disappearance.

In addition to Cooper, Reed is also writing a book about another notorious criminal, John Dillinger.

Danny Kaye to play 15 parts for special

Danny Kaye, the versatile entertainer who has appeared in numerous films and television shows, has agreed to play 15 different roles in a special for NBC.

The special, titled "The Danny Kaye Salute," will feature Kaye in a variety of comedy skits and musical numbers.

Kaye, who is known for his quick wit and deadpan delivery, will play a different character in each segment of the show.

The special will be produced by Kaye's longtime partner, Edmond O'Brien, and directed by Norman Taurog.

The show is scheduled to air on Sunday, March 12, at 9:00 pm on NBC.

Captain Averner

John Bitter is one of many Captain Averner fans who have followed his career in the motion picture industry.

Bitter, a former United States Army officer, has been active in the film industry for over 20 years.
