Release Date Won't Be Soon

Tara McCarty, President of the United States Department of Agriculture, announced that the release of the Cotton Pest Control Handbook was unlikely to occur before the end of the fiscal year. McCarty stated, "The release of the handbook is dependent on the completion of several important projects, including the development of new pest control technologies and policies. We are working diligently to ensure that the handbook is as comprehensive and useful as possible, but we cannot guarantee a release date at this time." McCarty added, "We will continue to work towards the completion of these projects and will provide updates as they become available." The handbook was previously scheduled to be released in the fall of 2023.

Sterile and Unhappy About It

A recent study conducted by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) found that the incidence of sterile infections has increased significantly over the past decade. Scientists attributed the rise in sterile infections to several factors, including the overuse of antibiotics and the emergence of antibiotic-resistant strains of bacteria. The CDC recommended that healthcare providers adopt new protocols to prevent the spread of sterile infections, including stricter infection control measures and the use of new medications that are less likely to contribute to the development of antibiotic resistance.

‘Me And Him Tried And Tried To Have Babies’

Frieda Pugger, one of the parents involved in the lawsuit, said that she and her husband "tried and tried to have babies" but were unsuccessful. Pugger explained that they had visited several fertility clinics and had undergone numerous treatments, but were still unable to conceive. "We are heartbroken and we are tired of the frustration," said Pugger. "We just want to have a family, and we will not give up until we succeed." The lawsuit was filed against the fertility clinic that had treated Pugger and her husband, alleging that they had provided substandard care and had not adequately informed the couple of the risks involved in the treatments.

Lots Of Monkeyshines

The local chapter of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Monkeys announced that it would be expanding its efforts to protect monkeys from harm. The organization recently launched a campaign to raise awareness about the mistreatment of monkeys and to encourage the public to support its efforts to protect these animals. "We are dedicated to ending the cruel treatment of monkeys," said the chapter’s president, "and we need everyone’s help to achieve our goal." The organization is also working to decrease the number of monkeys that are used in research and testing.

Shooting Sprees Hit Kabul

A shooting spree occurred in Kabul, resulting in the death of several innocent civilians. The authorities are currently investigating the incident to determine the cause and extent of the violence. "This is a terrible tragedy," said the city’s mayor, "and we offer our condolences to the families of the victims. We are working to ensure the safety and well-being of all residents of Kabul." The shooting spree is the latest in a series of violent incidents that have occurred in the city, highlighting the need for increased security measures and the importance of addressing the root causes of violence.

Reagan, Bush Alone

The political landscape is shifting, with Reagan and Bush now standing alone as the two presidential candidates. Reagan is a seasoned political figure with a long history of public service, while Bush is a relative newcomer to the political arena. "We are facing a critical election," said Reagan, "and we need a leader who can unite the country and address the challenges we face." Bush, on the other hand, emphasized his commitment to innovation and his desire to bring new ideas to politics. "I am running because I believe we need a fresh perspective," said Bush, "and I am ready to take on the challenges of leadership." The election promises to be a close contest, with both candidates vying for the support of the American people.

Did Herbicides Hurt These State Women?

The study has raised concerns about the potential health effects of herbicides on women. "We need to ensure that women are protected from the hazards of herbicides," said a leading expert in the field. "Herbicides are a powerful tool in agriculture, but we must be vigilant in ensuring that they are used safely and responsibly. The study’s findings are a call to action for policymakers and the public alike." The study was conducted by a team of researchers who studied the health outcomes of women who had been exposed to herbicides in their agricultural work. The results suggest that herbicides may have long-term health effects, including increased rates of cancer and reproductive issues.

Weather

The weather forecast predicts a warm and sunny day with temperatures reaching into the mid-70s. "We encourage everyone to take advantage of the good weather," said a local weather expert. "It’s a perfect day to spend outside and enjoy the beauty of nature." The forecast also predicts a high chance of precipitation later in the week, so residents are urged to stay prepared with umbrellas and raincoats.

FAME
ALAN ALDA: "I never wanted to be famous. I don't care for it. The only thing I get is the chance to play parts that go only to famous people. I always knew that if I wanted to do material I cared about I'd have to be well-known." . . . SANDY DUNCAN: "I don't mind fame because I love the funny things that happen when I'm recognized. The craziest incident was in New York City, where you meet all those nutty people. This man was jumping up and down on the sidewalk screaming, when he suddenly caught my eye as I passed him. Immediately, he stopped yelling, pointed a finger at me and said, 'Gee, aren't you Sandy Duncan?'" . . . FRANK SINATRA: "I've had the face of the sad side of being famous many times. You know, guys who decide to shoot twenty five pictures in a restaurant while I'm eating my dinner. But generally, the public has been very considerate of me. Most people will pass and say, 'Hi Frank.' I enjoy that."

TV SERIES
PERNELL ROBERTS: "I had such a dislike for television after I quit 'Bonanza' that I never believed I'd return to it again. I wanted to show everyone how terrible I would be at studio or as a director. Just fourteen years later doing the 'Trapper John' series. And there's a good reason for it. It's called security." . . . HENRY WINKEL: "No matter what you may have heard to the contrary, I love TV and I love being the Fonz. In fact, the day I heard I got the part was the happiest day in my life. When I hung up the phone all I could do was to start laughing, that kind of laugh where you get so nervous your body stops breathing." . . . KATHARINE HEPBURN: "I've always thought the TV screen too small for what I do. I like the care with which films are shot. One is too much of a hurry on TV."

IMAGES
LARRY WILCOX: "With my face, I'm resigned to always being cast as the all-American boy. But I never fail to try to make the all-American boy a little more interesting. That's my dream." . . . BO DEREK: "Everyone wants to believe you're like a character you play in a movie. Since 'Tina' came out, rumors have started implying I act like some sex bomb-shell off-screen. Some even think I'm a prostitute. . . . JILL CLAYBURGH: 'Men don't find me someone to idolize and I think they lack me for that. I have no idea why I'm people say it's because those men think, 'Gee, I could charm the pants off her.'"
"Trapper John, M.D."

Can Trapper John and the hospital somehow continue patient care? Will Gonzon perish without his feverish love life? Can Starch Willoughby weather the painful presence of an old flame?

Those are the crucial questions in the face of a seemingly inevitable outcome by the nurses union against San Francisco Memorial, on "Trapper John, M.D.," Sunday, Feb. 24 (9:00-10:00 p.m.), on the CBS Television Network. Alex March directed the show for a second season by Kenneth Berg.

Trapper is worried about what happens to critically ill patients when nurses are unavailable. Gonzon is worried about the situation of patients. Starch is worried about a patient's flirtation with a new love. Ben is worried about a patient's financial problems. And, more than anyone else in the hospital, Starch is worried about his own health.

Woodstock becomes the unlikely hero when the patient's condition takes a turn for the worse. He is the only one who can help the patient, and he does so with skill and compassion. Starch, on the other hand, decides to spend the night with his new love interest, leaving the hospital staff to deal with the patient's crisis.

Farrah Fawcett guest stars

Farrah Fawcett guest stars as angel Jill Munroe, who is taken hostage by a murderous escaped convict and his two sons, becoming a valuable hostage to the father, a friend to one son and a target for the other's amorous desires, on the ABC Television Network's "Charlie's Angels," Wednesday, Feb. 27 (8:00-9:00 p.m.). In "An Angel's Trail," Jill is about to run out of gas while driving through the desert when she comes upon a "last chance" service station. A van is parked outside, occupied by the retarded Harley Mason, who is waiting for his father, Sam, and brother, Clint. Just as Jill is about to enter the station, a shot rings out and Sam and Clint come dashing out, carrying a smoking gun and a cash box.

Sam, angered at seeing Jill, swoops her up into the van and they head out into the desert. Harley and Clint have helped Sam, who was serving time for murdering their mother, break out of jail, and now they are on the lam.

"Elvis" will have encore presentation

"Elvis," the dramatic story of an American hero who made television history last year on "the biggest blockbuster night in the history of the three networks," will have an encore showing on the ABC Television Network's "The ABC Monday Night Movie," Feb. 25 (7:00-10:00 P.M.) Produced by Dick Clark Productions, "Elvis" stars Kurt Russell as the Memphis schoolboy who overcame a poverty-stricken childhood to become one of the most popular and enduring entertainers of our time. Also starring are Shelley Winters as Gladys Presley, Elvis' mother; Season Hubley as Priscilla, the girl Elvis married who bore his only child; Pat Hingle as Col. Tom Parker, the entreprenurial businessman who created the Elvis mystique; and Bing Russell (Kurt Russell's father) as Vernon Presley, Elvis' strong-willed father.

"Elvis" dramatizes the singer's rise from poverty to wealth and from obscurity to unparalleled popularity. Unable to stay out of the spotlight, he began to suffer bouts of severe depression, which alienated him from his friends and put an end to his marriage. Though it all, he remained the "King," the most popular entertainer in the history of that uniquely American music form called rock and roll.

John Carpenter directed "Elvis" from a screenplay written by Anthony Lawrence. Lawrence also served as the producer and Dick Clark was the executive producer of the Dick Clark Production.

ABC news report previews primary

ABC News will present a special half-hour report previewing the New Hampshire primary on Sunday, Feb. 24, at 9:30 p.m., on the ABC Television Network, as announced by Roone Arledge, President of ABC News.

The special report will kick off ABC's coverage of the New Hampshire primary and continue its "700 '70" series on campaign reports, which included a 73-minute special following the Iowa caucus.

The history of the New Hampshire primary and its consequences for presidential candidates will be reviewed, along with expectations of turnout and reports on candidates' New England campaigning.

In addition, ABC News will broadcast special reports following the primaries in New Hampshire (February 26), Massachusetts (March 4), Florida (March 11), and Illinois (March 19) at 10:30 p.m. Other primary reports will be announced at a later date.

ABC News Personnel on hand for each special will include:

- ABC News Correspondent Frank Reynolds, who will anchor the special reports from each primary state.
- Hal Bruno, ABC News Political Director, who will analyze the primary results and discuss emerging trends.
- Steve Bell and "Good Morning America" will report on developments from the state.

Sports Calendar

There will be both an end and a beginning for ABC sports this week. The end comes on Sunday, Feb. 24. That day will be filled with figure skating, ice hockey and baseball from the Lake Placid. And then, asprimetime begins, we will see the closing ceremonies of the 1980 Winter Olympics.

The following Saturday (March 1), the beginning comes for this year's World Series of Auto Racing, an exciting 5-week series (always on Saturday afternoon) which has top drivers from all major forms of auto racing - stock car, Indy style and road racing - battling for $300,000 in prize money.

The most unique feature about this series is that all of the driving takes place in specially constructed identical cars. Naturally, even these cars may be slightly different, just as your car may have slightly better speed or pick-up than an "identical" car bought by your neighbor. But certainly these cars are in any other major racing competition. That is why this series is considered the premier in terms of testing skills. If a driver wins here, odds are it is to be because he has the special talents required for earning top honors.

Almost all the racing favorites will be on hand: Dale Earnhardt, the Brothers Allison (Bobby and Donnie), Rick Mears, Bobby Unser, Gordon Johncock, Mario Andretti, and many more. But one very important name will be missing - A.J. Foyt. He has been the big winner here in two of the six years since the competition began. Yet he will not be here for the seventh. The organizers insist that they invited A.J. but he declined. Why, A.J.? Locations for the races will be the Michigan International Speedway, Riverside International, Al Michaels, Jackie Stewart and Chris Economaki will report the action.

After a harrowing day with a group of kids in a day-care program, Mark (Robin Williams, center) meets a priest (Garry Goodrow) and is so inspired that he later sneaks out dressed as a priest after Mindy (Pam Dawber, left) is asleep and goes to the church where he attempts to help people—including a man wanting to commit suicide who until he met Mark didn’t know there were so many ways to do it—in “Mark’s Clerical Error,” on the ABC Television Network’s “Mork & Mindy,” Thursday, Feb. 28 (7:00-7:30 p.m.).

Six-Hour Drama

“Scruples,” a provocative mini-series starring Lindsay Wagner, Barry Bostwick and Marie-France Pisier in the story of a poor, unattractive girl who evolves into a wealthy, beautiful woman, wielding enormous power in the cutthroat worlds of high fashion and moviemaking, will be presented in three two-hour broadcas ts Monday, Feb. 25, Tuesday, Feb. 26 and Thursday, Feb. 28 (8:00-10:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Also starring are Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Connie Stevens, Nick Manoukas, Robert Reed, Gene Tierney, Louise Latham, Geneviève, and Michael Callan, with Gary Graham, Sarah Marshall, Milton Selzer, Paul Carr, John Hancock, Anna Lee, Lella Goldnroni and George Gaynes. Guest stars are Kim Cattrall, François-Marie Banier and Gavin MacLeod.

The story, based on Judith Krantz’s best-selling novel, opens as glamorous Billy Ikern (Miss Wagner) performs the sad task of disposing of the ashes of her late husband, multimillionaire Ellis Ikern (Zimbalist), a man nearly 40 years her senior and crippled through much of their marriage by a stroke.

Billy then heads for her luxury boudoir in Beverly Hills, called Scruples, a playland for the super-rich which Billy created to fill the void in her life left by her husband’s illness.

There the shop’s manager, romantic Spider Elliott (Bostwick), and top-flight designer Valentine (Miss Pisier), carry on a long-standing feud, interrupted only by the demands of an important client, Hollywood reporter Maggie McGregor (Miss Stevens).

In the glittery boudoir, Billy is shocked to encounter an old love, the sophisticated Comte Edouard de la Cote de Grace (Banier), and in flashbacks, relives her rise from poverty in Paris to a position as one of the world’s most alluring women.

The television adaptation of “Scruples” was written by James Lee. It was directed by Alan J. Levi and produced by Leonard B. Kaufman. Paul R. Picard was executive producer and Ron Samuel the supervising producer of the Lou-Step Production in association with Warner Bros. Television.

In Part I, Billy recalls her days in Paris as an awkward, overweight schoolgirl from an old-line Boston family, learning French with the poor but elegant Lillian (Geneviève). Billy is heartbroken when she learns she was woed by the imprisoned Comte for her supposed fortune and she heads for New York. There she goes to work as a secretary to multi-millionaire tycoon Ellis Ikern; they fall in love and have a sublime and happy marriage until he stitches ill. She finally fills her empty days by opening her shop, and one lonely night goes to what turns out to be a disastrous party with an unscrupulous male nurse, Jake Cusidy (Gary Graham).

Meanwhile, fashion photographer Spider and designer Valentine meet in New York and pursue the careers that eventually bring them to Scruples. Spider discovers the breathtakingly beautiful model, Melanie (Kim Cattrall), who comes under the influence of ruthless fashion editor Harriet Toppling (Gene Tierney). And Valentine finds herself in a fateful triangle.

In Part II, conscience-stricken by her husband’s death while she was at a party, Billy throws herself into the job of running Scruples. She hires Valentine to put the shop in the high fashion picture; Valentine makes sure Spider is included in the deal and attracts the attention of Billy’s staid attorney, Josh Hillman (Robert Reed). Billy’s life takes an exciting new turn when she meets Italian film producer Vito Osini (Nick Manoukas), and through powerful studio owner Jake Arvey (Gavin MacLeod) and his wife, Susan (Sarah Marshall), Billy is introduced to the intense, all-consuming world of moviemaking. And to her horror, Billy is drawn into a murder investigation.

In Part III, Billy’s passionate love for Vito makes it difficult for her to accept his dedication to his work. At the same time, Josh Hillman asks his wife, Joanne (Lella Goldnroni), for a divorce so he can marry Valentine. Billy and Vito are married and she focuses her tremendous energies on her husband and his latest film. Spider proves himself invaluable in the face of trouble from the film’s star, his former model, Melanie, and a sabotage attempt by Jake Arvey. Jake Cusidy shows up again to threaten Billy’s happiness.

AS ALEX (JUDD HIRSCH, RIGHT) IS ABOUT TO LEAP INTO THE WILD BLUE, BOBBY (JEFF CONWAY) GIVES HIM A LEARN-YELLING—A LESSON IN YELLING—A LESSON HE CAN PUT TO QUICK USE BECAUSE HE IS AFRAID OF HEIGHTS AND PARACHUTING IS HIS GREATEST FEAR.

"Aunt Dorothy taught me to always shop for the best values. So I taught her about Mellow Roast."

Aunt Dorothy always taught me, "Never cut corners on quality, but don't waste money." That's why we always added great coffee to smooth away bitterness for great coffee taste. And shopped around for the best values in town.

So when I found Mellow Roast, I was verrry in love with it. Mellow Roast® Coffee and Grain Beverage is a blend of rich coffee and roasted grains that smooth away bitterness, for delicious, full-flavored coffee taste, cup after cup.

We, with all that goodness, Mellow Roast still costs less than most leading regional coffees. Try Mellow Roast. It's the most delicious value around.

Mellow Roast... Great coffee taste without bitterness.
Candidates and Their Children

By Marrice Sporirth

I've been a little bit about a woman, a woman named Barbara Brenton. She's the mother of three children, all of whom are smokers. Her youngest son, Michael, just turned 18 and is already a heavy smoker. Barbara herself is a non-smoker, but she's always been supportive of her children's choice. She believes that they should be able to make their own decisions about smoking, even if it means they start at a young age.

Barbara's one concern is that the growing number of children who start smoking at a young age will have a harder time quitting later on. She's glad that her children have not yet started to use other tobacco products, but she's concerned that they might be exposed to them in the future.

The children of the completely smoke-free home are much lower, but they still have their own concerns. They're worried about what might happen if they start smoking. Barbara is trying to make sure that they understand the risks associated with smoking.

Barbara believes that parents should be involved in their children's decisions about smoking, but she also understands that they need to respect their children's privacy. She's trying to find a balance between being supportive and being firm about her children's smoking habits.

Latest Wave Of Smoker Research:
Smokers prefer MERIT to over high tar leaders in tests comparing taste and tar levels.

Merit Solid Winner!

Spokesmen Report MERIT third March high tar Cigarettes. New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good or better than leading high tar brands. Many smokers have tried other tar levels.

Of the 95% according preference, a test of 400 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were compared.

MERIT Proven Long Term Alternative To High Tar Products.

New national smoker study results offer conclusive proof.

Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that smoking is hazardous to your health.

Proof: The overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers polled felt they did not sacrifice taste in switching from high tar cigarettes.

Proof: 90% of MERIT smokers don't use former high tar brands.

Proof: 90% of smokers switching as much since switching to MERIT are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

You've tried the tests. The conclusion is clear: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying their long term needs.

Overcoming Childhood Obesity

By Susan Lapinskas

Overweight kids tend to get a lot of negative feedback from their parents, teachers and peers," says Dr. Howard Heins, a member of the staff who specializes in nutritional medicine and weight control. "Many overweight children carry these feelings of insecurity with them throughout their lives."

Because there are so many children like Rosie in affluent, food-loving America, childhood obesity is a serious national concern. Experts in the field now believe that many weight problems begin in birth and become increasingly difficult to rectify as a child grows.

In one of the most significant recent findings on the subject, Dr. Julie Hirsch, professor and senior physician at New York’s Rockefeller University, discovered that a thin person has about 27 trillion fat cells in his body, compared to 77 trillion in the obese person. Those fat cells, which form in the body, remain with great efficiency; that is, losing weight will never be easy for the obese adult.

Doctors can’t make fat cells go away, but they can prescribe changes in diet, exercise and behavior, which can lower the number of fat cells produced and reduce the gradual weight loss that won’t interfere with a child’s linear growth.

How does a parent know when a child is obese? Commonly, a youngster is said to be obese if he is 20 percent over his ideal body weight, but a child may be overweight for his age, height and weight, without ever becoming obese. If a child looks for, acts before and is being teased by his peers, a parent should seek the advice of a pediatrician. A doctor will be able to rule out any possibility of disease before prescribing an effective therapy program.

Doctors have found that hereditary diseases are rarely the cause of childhood obesity. For example:

Genetic: Doctors don’t know what inherited trait or traits result in obesity. It is true that 50 percent of children born of obese parents have 80 percent of their fat from two obese parents.

Physiological: Between birth and 5 years, early overeating is believed to result in an increased number of fat cells in the body. By the age of 6 or 7, this obese child may already have more fat cells than a normal adult. "The problem may actually begin in the womb for children of obese women," says Dr. Willem M. Fidler of the Nutrition and Obesity Clinic at New York’s Mt. Sinai Hospital. "By the time it is 3 or 4, the number of fat cells in his body has already become fixed—it’s stuck with him.

These cells establish the tendency to gain weight easily.

Psychological: When a parent urges a child to "clean his plate," a lifetime association connecting food with affection and attention may begin. On a child may unconsciously use obesity to "punish" a parent or to avoid socializing with others.

Environmental: Many behavioral factors that lead to obesity are learned from the family. These include habits of eating without being hungry, eating nutritionally inadequate or junk foods and getting inadequate exercise.

Once a doctor has prepared the causes of a child’s obesity, he or she will enlist the help of parents in a program of diet, exercise and behavior, such as the following one suggested by Dr. Paulette.

Diet Therapy: Nudging and nudging along, the way that positively models a child’s food habits will begin. Begin by dropping little hints from the child’s reach. Serve attractive, well-balanced meals that include moderate-sized portions of proteins (preferably poultry, meat or fish and vegetables. Avoid heavy, rich foods; cut out "good" carbohydrates, whole-wheat breads, fruit, vegetables, potatoes. Limit desserts and snacks to low-calorie gelatins, fresh fruit, skim milk and low-calorie sodas.

Exercise: Not a good example if a parent is an exercise enthusiast, a child will get the idea that exercise can be worth the effort. Or discourage sedentary activities by assigning a child a house chore that will help get him up and about.

Parental Support: Children are a lot of child’s ego is already on the line, so he doesn’t need any more negative comments. Stay building your youngster’s enthusiasm with praise and even a occasional non-food reward—a trip to the circus or a toy, such as a baseball glove or jump rope, that will stimulate activity.

Parents cannot control what their child eats outside the home, nor can they lose weight for them. But parental support can make all the difference in determining whether a child grows into a slender, confident and healthy adult.
