Sen. Bellmon Still Favors Connally For President

Infant Named

WASHINGTON — The No. 2 Democrat in the Senate, Sen. David B. Bellmon, has expressed support for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., but he also has not suggested that support for the New York senator is absolute. The Senator from Oklahoma said he was not sure if Senator Humphrey can carry the Democratic nomination to the convention. Regaining Amtrak

There was a time when Amtrak was a viable option for intercity travel in the United States. However, due to various factors including financial issues and changing preferences, Amtrak has faced challenges in recent years. The push to regain momentum is evident, with efforts to improve services and make the system more attractive to passengers.

Senseless Certifying

The process of certifying something senselessly is a non-sequitur, offering no logical or practical benefit. It seems to be a throwback to a time when everything was done for the sake of doing it, rather than for a clear purpose or measurable outcome.

Hints From Heloise

DURABLE BAGS - To avoid having your new chenille baggers getting wrinkled or out of shape, here is a good hint: Take the baggers and place them in a plastic bag. Then place them in your refrigerator. You can take them without any worry about their shape or wrinkles. After getting into the refrigerator, place the baggers in a box or other container to keep them from tearing. This is a great way to keep your baggers looking their best.

In Sorrow

Some people thought they could save their marriages by having affairs, but now they're finding out that even that's not enough. The latest example is the case of Dr. Michael DeBakey, who's been married for 50 years. But his wife, Mary, believes she was cheated on by her husband. She has filed for divorce.

Dr. DeBakey is a well-known heart surgeon and has been named one of the 100 most influential people in the world by Time magazine. However, his personal life has been under scrutiny after his wife accused him of having an affair with a female patient. The couple announced on Friday that they would be going their separate ways.

The couple met while Dr. DeBakey was still a student, and they have been married for the past 50 years. Mary DeBakey, who is now 80, said in a statement that she never thought her marriage could be saved.

"I thought I could save it," she said. "But it just wasn't going to work. Our marriage was over." She added that she is now working on healing her heart after a decade of heartache.

The announcement comes after Dr. DeBakey was named as the new president of the University of Virginia. He is stepping down as chancellor of the medical school to focus on his teaching and research.

DeBakey is the second heart surgeon to be named as president of a major university in recent years. Dr. C. Everett Koop, who was also a heart surgeon, was named president of Dartmouth College in 1987.

The announcement has sparked a national debate about the appropriateness of having a heart surgeon as a university president. Critics say that the University of Virginia should have chosen someone with more experience in administration.

"We need a president who can take care of the business of the university," said Dr. William F. McFarland, a partner of Dr. DeBakey. "I don't think Dr. DeBakey can do that."
