By Larry Kelly
OKLAHOMA CITY — Assistant District Attorney Stanley Pearce unveiled a strategy the agency was using to convict three of the five defendants accused of the 1978 raid on Fila 79, who is accused of the Sept. 9 robbery involving police money. The trial ended in a hung jury.

Pearce released information to the media during the trial Friday that shows the first-degree murder defendant died in a motor vehicle accident in 1978.

During pretrial hearings and motions filed in the murder case, defense attorneys contended that Nazari could not remember anything about the event.

But during a police interview with Nazari, the defendant admitted he had heard about the robbery and was trying to put it in the back of his mind.

Pearce also told the court the plan to have Nazari tested for a polygraph examination of a voice broadcast over police telephone after Nazari allegedly left the robbery scene.

The defendant was arbitrated by Judge Carmen C. Harris under defense attorney to declare if they were going to prove their case on an insanity defense.

However, the district judge ruled to delay testimony to 9 a.m. Friday to allow more time for the strategy at this time.

Pearce also told the court about the decision to have Nazari tested for a polygraph examination of a voice broadcast over police telephone after Nazari allegedly left the robbery scene.

But during the police interview with Nazari, the defendant admitted he had heard about the robbery and was trying to put it in the back of his mind.

Hints From Heloise

Making Newspaper 'Logs'

Dear Heloise:

I need help organizing my newspaper logs. How do I keep track of all the papers I've ordered and when I received them? Can you recommend any software or tools for this task?

Sincerely,
[Name]

Dear [Name],

Organizing newspaper logs can be a bit tricky, but I have a few suggestions that might help. First, consider using a spreadsheet program like Microsoft Excel or Google Sheets. You can create a new sheet and list the newspapers, dates of receipt, and other relevant information. This will allow you to easily sort and filter the data as needed.

Alternatively, you might want to consider using a database software like Microsoft Access or FileMaker Pro. These programs are more advanced and allow for more complex data management, which might be useful if you have a large collection of logs.

Another option is to use a physical notebook or binder to file your logs. You can create sections for each newspaper and write down the dates and other details. This method is more traditional, but it can be very effective if you prefer a paper-based system.

I hope these suggestions help you organize your newspaper logs. If you have any further questions, feel free to ask.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
