Volcanic ash spreads as far away as 50 miles to the northwest in the Columbus region. The ash fell on March 29 from a volcano in the State Department of Emergency Services building. In addition, it was the first volcanic eruption in Ohio for 18 years when Mount St. Helens last erupted in 1980. At least 160 flights were canceled due to the ash cloud, and at least 500,000 people were affected in the region.

Psycho Backs Up Kelly ABCAM Tale

WASHINGTON — Bill, Richard Kelly's nephew, is a true harried father. In the Kelly family, he is a man of action. There is no question about that. But when Bills father was arrested on charges of illegal gambling, Bill's reaction was one of disbelief. His father had always been a victim of circumstance, he thought to himself. The Kelly family is a family of hardworking people, and they want to make sure that Bill stays out of trouble.

The arrest came as a surprise to Bill and his family. They had always thought of their father as a hardworking man, but now they were faced with the reality of his criminal behavior. The Kelly family has always been a tight-knit group, and they want to do everything they can to support Bill in this difficult time.

Bill's reaction was one of disbelief. His father had always been a victim of circumstance, he thought to himself. The Kelly family is a family of hardworking people, and they want to make sure that Bill stays out of trouble.

Shakeup due for NBC personalities

By Gary Deeb

The ratings war is heating up and networks are scrambling to stay on top. NBC, which has traditionally dominated the evening news, is feeling the heat from ABC and CBS, who have been gaining ground.

At NBC, there have been rumors of a shakeup in the evening news division. Sources close to the network say that NBC News President Bob Wright is considering a major reorganization.

One possibility is the addition of a new anchor team to the "Tonight Show" line-up. The network is reportedly considering a move away from the traditional two-anchor format and exploring the possibility of using a single host.

NBC News is also reportedly looking at ways to revitalize its morning shows. The network has struggled in this time slot in recent years and is looking for a way to attract more viewers.

Lessons come late for ex-network boss

By Tamara Scott

Hollywood (UPI) - The fates of two people in the movie business were intertwined, so intertwined, in fact, that they were married. The question is: What will they do next and where will they go?

The answer may well be in the hands of the courts, who will decide whether or not a former television executive is entitled to a large share of the profits from a movie that he helped to make.

It is not clear whether the courts will agree with the former executive, or whether they will side with the studio that produced the movie. The outcome of the case could have far-reaching implications for the film industry, as well as for the individual involved.

In the meantime, the former executive is living in a hotel room, waiting for the court decision. He has been ordered to stay away from the studio where he worked, and he is not allowed to speak to any of the other people involved in the case.

The studio has been ordered to pay him a large sum of money, but the former executive is not happy with the amount. He believes that he is entitled to much more, and he plans to appeal the decision.
