Europe Ponders Iranian Sanctions

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — With the pressure of their own daunting使命 weighing uneasily upon them, European leaders prepared to hold showdown talks with Iran's oil-rich neighbors at a time when U.S. and European Common Market leaders were meeting in Naples to discuss stronger economic sanctions against Iran for refusing to release the $7 billion it was owed in arrears.

Last April 27, the ministers met in London to impose severe economic sanctions against Iran if it renewed its oil boycott. But the ministers did not decide to impose sanctions on Iran because they did not believe it would have a significant impact on the European Community's economy.

Now, as the European leaders prepare to meet in Naples, they are faced with a difficult decision. They must decide whether to impose sanctions on Iran, or to continue to try to negotiate a solution.

The European Union's foreign ministers are meeting in Naples to discuss the issue. They will be joined by leaders from the United States, Canada, Japan, and Australia.

As the European leaders meet, the situation in the Middle East continues to be tense. Iran's leaders have been vague about their intentions, and the U.S. is pressuring them to stop their nuclear weapons program.

Meanwhile, the European Union is trying to maintain peaceful relations with Iran, but it is difficult to do so. The European Union has been criticized for its policy toward Iran, and some European leaders believe that more must be done to pressure Iran to change its behavior.

In the meantime, the European leaders are faced with a difficult choice. They must decide whether to impose sanctions on Iran, or to continue to try to negotiate a solution. It is a difficult decision, and one that will have significant implications for the future of the European Community.

Food Stamps Saved

Washington, D.C. — The Food and Drug Administration announced today that it would stop accepting Food Stamps at drugstores and other retail establishments as of January 1, 2023.

This decision was made after a thorough review of the program, which has been in place since 1972. The program was intended to help low-income individuals purchase healthy food, but it has been plagued by fraud and abuse.

The FDA said that it would work with Congress to find a new way to provide financial assistance to low-income individuals. It also said that it would continue to work with states and local governments to ensure that people have access to healthy food.

Fund Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Clinton signed into law today a $12 billion food stamps bill that will keep federal food stamps flowing to 28 million people — at least until 2024.

The bill, which was passed by Congress earlier this month, includes $1.5 billion for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), which provides food assistance to low-income families.

The bill also includes $10.5 billion for the National School Lunch Program, which provides meals to children in schools and other institutions.

Food stamps benefit approximately 1 in 5 Americans, and the program has been one of the most popular in the country for decades. It provides important nutritional assistance to low-income families, and helps ensure that children have access to healthy food.

The bill was opposed by some Republicans, who accused the Democratic-led Congress of overreaching. But the final vote was 316-98, with 90 Republicans and 28 Democrats voting against it.

The bill includes provisions aimed at reducing fraud and abuse in the program, and it also provides funding for states to improve their systems for distributing food stamps.

The bill is expected to be a major victory for Clinton, who has long been a advocate of the program. He has said that it is one of the most important ways to ensure that all Americans have access to healthy food.

DEAR HELoise: Recently, the following method that I found for controlling aphids made a big difference in the condition of my plants.

First, I placed a shallow saucer with water on the windowsill. Then I filled it with a solution of 1 part liquid window cleaner and 2 parts water, and mixed in a few drops of liquid dishwashing detergent. After two days the aphids were dead and my plants looked so much better. Now I use this method every two weeks to control aphids on my roses.

Alternative Punishment

As Americans work to remove the last vestiges of what has been called the "war on poverty," still another vestige, the war on crime, remains in full swing. The new strategy for dealing with criminals calls for alternative forms of punishment, such as community service and rehabilitation programs. These programs are designed to be less costly than traditional incarceration and to provide a more effective means of addressing the root causes of crime.
