OC Man Wants Answer: Doesn’t Anyone Care?

By Jimmy Floyd
Staff Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — Does anyone really care? Charles McDanel is asking himself that question now. McDanel was only 8 years old when his sister was killed in 1982. His sister, Sarah, was found dead in her room with a suicide note that read, "I can't handle it any longer."

McDanel, now 17, went to a friend's house Thursday night to ask for help. He said he was afraid to go home because his family didn't want to hear about it.

"I just want to talk to someone about this," McDanel said. "I want to know why this happens. I want to know why my sister died."

McDanel's father, who is serving a life sentence for murder, said he was not involved in his daughter's death.

Delegation Back Home

"The purpose of the policy to keep violence in the Middle East low is to prevent people from going to war," said a Department of State official.

"We are working to ensure that the ongoing situation is resolved peacefully," the official said.

McDonald, who was alone in the room, said he heard a loud noise and then felt his body being jolted. He said he tried to reach out to his family but couldn't get through.

"I don't know why this happened," McDonald said. "I just want to know what I can do to help."
