Comic Book Has Roman Catholics Upset

By Julie Lowndes

Oklahoma City -- A new comic book set to hit the stands next month has caused quite a stir among Roman Catholics. The comic, titled "The Devil's Advocate," is a graphic novel that follows the life of a young priest who is forced to confront his own demons.

"I don't think that the comic book is doing anyone any good," said Father Michael Costa, a priest at St. Mary's Church in Oklahoma City. "It's just another example of the church being portrayed in a negative light."
