OKLAHOMA CITY — A 27-year-old Negro woman was convicted yesterday of raping a white man.

The woman, identified as Juanita Munn, 27, was found guilty of first-degree rape by a jury of seven men and one woman after a two-day trial in District Court.

She was sentenced to life in prison without parole.

Munn was charged with raping a man on March 28, 1982.

The victim, a 65-year-old white man, testified that he was walking down a street when he was attacked by Munn.

He said she held him down and forced him to have sex with her.

The woman then fled the scene.

Munn was later found and arrested.

The victim identified her in a photo lineup.

The case was handled by District Attorney John C. Proctor and his assistant, Steven S. Brown.

The jury deliberated for about four hours before reaching its verdict.

Broiling Heat Kills Chickens

By Junior Fawrin

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A broiling heat wave has killed thousands of chickens in Arkansas.

The state's poultry industry is facing a major crisis as temperatures soared to record levels.

According to the Arkansas Department of Agriculture, the high temperatures have killed more than 50,000 chickens in the past week.

The state's largest chicken producer, John's Poultry, said it had lost thousands of chickens due to the heat.

The company said it was working to prevent further losses.

The heat wave has also affected other industries, including agriculture and tourism.

As temperatures continue to rise, experts are warning people to take precautions to protect themselves from the heat.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has upheld Congress' power to regulate interstate commerce under the Commerce Clause.

In a 7-2 decision, the court ruled that Congress has the authority to regulate activities that have a substantial effect on commerce across state lines.

The ruling involves a case brought by a small business that was fined by the government for violating environmental laws.

The court said Congress has the power to regulate such activities because they affect interstate commerce.

The case, National League of Cities v. Usery, was heard by the court in February.

The decision upholds a 1977 law that requires states to adopt certain standards for pollution control.

The law applies to all states, whether or not they have pollution control programs.

The court said the law is a reasonable exercise of Congress' power to regulate commerce.

The decision is likely to have far-reaching implications for the federal government's ability to regulate activities that affect commerce.

Carter Cautious With Central American Politics

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is sending diplomats around the world to try to improve its image and defuse the hostile feelings of many Latin American nations.

The administration's efforts, however, are complicated by the ongoing crisis in Central America, where 180,000 U.S. troops are stationed to support the government of Honduras.

Defense Secretary James E. Carter said in a recent interview that the United States would not withdraw its forces from Central America unless the situation there improves.

"I don't think we're going to pull our troops out unless there's a change in the situation," he said. "We're not going to pull them out unless we feel there's a chance of ending the war."

Stocks Plummet In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks suffered their worst drop in months in early trading Thursday, as a sharp decline in the market on Wednesday continued.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had been down more than 500 points earlier in the day, was down 365 points by late morning. The S&P 500 index was down 38 points.

There were no clear reasons for the decline, which came despite the release of good news from several companies. Microsoft reported strong quarterly earnings, and Intel said its profit rose 10 percent.

But investors appeared to be worried about the economy, which has been struggling to recover from the coronavirus pandemic. The Federal Reserve has been cutting interest rates to stimulate the economy, but some economists say it may not be enough.

"I think people are worried about the economy," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics. "They're worried that the recovery may be slowing down, and they're worried about the potential for another wave of the virus."
