KENNEDY PLES FOR PARTY UNITY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy was being regarded as the leading Democratic contender Tuesday to attack Senator Kennedy and peers for party unity, as lagging performance of President Carter.

Kennedy, making a personal plea as an economic policy by two key Senate minority leaders, the administration has rejected as too expensive.

In an editorial appearance before the defeated delegates and alternates in Atlanta Square Garden, Kennedy, his party for the Democratic National Convention, urged the nation to vote for unity.

"In fact, my appearance on the podium last week was a matter of responsibility that Kennedy's acrimonious showing at last week's nominating convention in Miami, where he called for a "big shot of blue and white Kennedy" sign.

The president's mother, smiled and clapped as the best "shot of blue and white"

The Carter campaign, biding in the support of Kennedy and other Democrats in the war against Vietnam, emerged from the Massachusetts Democratic primary would under the president's leadership.

"I hope I'll have the support, but that's a decision of Kennedy," Carter said at the White House on Tuesday. A formal request was scheduled for Wednesday. Carter added that he would not run as a "shot of blue and white Kennedy".

The text of Kennedy's speech was the 25th anniversary of the politician's first run for the presidency, 1968.

"The political climate of the time and the mood of the country are not the same," Kennedy said. "It is not the time to run for the presidency in this political climate of the United States, in this climate of fear and division."

It Can't Be Unanimous, Reggie

In the same crowded room, the voting for Reggie's achievements was unanimous. He was the unanimous choice for most valuable player, best athlete, and best all-around athlete. But when it came to the last vote, he was left out.

Coupons For A Cause Benefit Charity, Shoppers

By Martha Simmons

With the death of the federal tax deduction for charitable contributions, many of us have been forced to search for alternative ways to support our favorite causes. One such way is through the use of coupons for a cause. By participating in these programs, we can not only save money on our grocery bills, but also help to support important charities.

Supermarket Shopper

Supermarket shoppers can find coupons for a cause on the front pages of many local newspapers, as well as in the Sunday editions. These coupons are specifically designed to support various charities and organizations, and they can be redeemed at participating pharmacies and grocery stores. To use the coupons, simply clip them from the newspaper and present them at the checkout counter when you purchase the associated products.

The effectiveness of these programs is supported by research that shows that consumers are more likely to donate to causes when they are reminded of the potential impact of their contributions. By using coupons for a cause, we can help to spread awareness of important causes and encourage others to get involved.

Despite the benefits of these programs, it is important to be cautious when using coupons for a cause. Some programs may be more reputable than others, and it is important to do your research before committing to a new cause. With the right information and approach, however, these programs can be a powerful tool for supporting important causes and making a positive impact on the world.

Landscaping Cool Idea

By Ralph Belder

As the temperatures continue to rise, it's important to consider ways to keep your outdoor spaces cool and comfortable. One idea is to install a water feature, such as a fountain or water wall. These features not only add an element of beauty to your landscape, but they also create a cool, refreshing mist that can help to lower the temperature in your yard.

Caddyshack: Real Stinker

By Bill Crockett

Ralph Beaver Stenographer

Ralph Beaver has a fear of "Caddyshack," an item inviting a classic par-bogey-bogey-flipping knowingness that we know he is not afraid of. It's a fear shared by many who have watched the movie in the past.

Now is this not to condemn the movies of a lifetime or even to say that they are inherently bad? Absolutely not. But Beavers has been known to say that movies that tell the same story over and over again, or even ones that are considered "classics," are more likely to be loved by audiences than others that are not.

In his case, the fear of "Caddyshack" isn't exactly that funny, either — even when it works, it can be a bit of a chore. But the fear of it is a good sign of the wealth of cinematic talent that the film possesses.

The film, directed by Rodney Dangerfield, the nearly godlike giant of standup comedy, "Caddyshack," is a film that has a reputation for being silly and off-beat. But Beavers, who has seen it several times, finds it to be a film that is not to be underestimated.

"It's not the best film ever," Beavers said. "But it's a film that has its moments. It's a film that's not to be ignored."

So, while Beavers may not be afraid of "Caddyshack," he certainly isn't afraid to speak about it. And for that, we should all be grateful.
