CARTER UNVEILS ECONOMIC PLAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter announced a "reinvigorated" plan to reignite the economy and to create hundreds of thousands of new jobs.

The plan includes a $30 billion tax cut for businesses, a $10 billion investment in public works projects, and a $15 billion increase in federal spending.

The President said the plan would be implemented immediately and would create 300,000 new jobs by the end of the year.

"This plan is a bold and comprehensive approach to stimulating the economy," said Carter. "We must act now to prevent a full-scale recession and to protect the middle class."

Dear Heloise:

I have a problem with mildew odor in my bathroom. What can I do to get rid of it?

Sincerely,

Dear Reader

Dear Reader:

Mildew odor in the bathroom can be a challenge. To get rid of it, try using a mixture of vinegar and baking soda. Sprinkle the mixture on affected areas and let sit for a few hours before cleaning with a solution of vinegar and water. Regular cleaning and proper ventilation can also help prevent mildew in the bathroom.

Bremer’s Diary Found?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - A 140-page manuscript, believed to be the diary of former Wisconsin Gov. George W. Bremer, was found in the basement of a home near Madison.

The manuscript, which Bremer kept as his diary during the 1970s, was discovered by a couple who purchased the home. The couple contacted the University of Wisconsin-Madison and the state historical society, which is considering the manuscript for preservation.

The manuscript contains letters, notes, and other writings from Bremer’s time in office. It includes references to political figures and events of the time, as well as personal reflections.

China Attacks Reagan - Again

BEIJING (AP) - China has again attacked President Reagan, this time in the wake of his visit to Japan. The Chinese government has accused Reagan of supporting the anti-communist movement in China.

The Chinese government has also criticized Reagan’s policies in the Middle East and elsewhere, saying they are detrimental to world peace. The Chinese leadership has expressed its concern that Reagan’s policies could lead to a new Cold War.

The Chinese government has also announced plans to strengthen its military, citing concerns about the growing power of the United States and other countries.

China’s profound interest in the Western world has not wavered. Despite the economic sanctions and diplomatic pressure, China has continued to support the anti-communist movement in the region, which it sees as a threat to its national security.

China’s interest in the region is not just economic. It also sees the anti-communist movement as a way to assert its influence and influence the region's political landscape.

China’s efforts to build its military are also part of this broader strategy. The Chinese government has announced plans to increase its defense budget and to strengthen its military capabilities, including its navy and air force.

China’s support for the anti-communist movement has also extended to other areas, such as human rights and democracy. The Chinese government has been critical of the United States’ policies in the region, saying they are detrimental to world peace.

Stocks Suffer Fourth Straight Loss

NEW YORK CITY - Prices plunged in the stock market Wednesday, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average to its lowest level in six months. The blue chips fell 20.56 points, or 2.42%, to close at 817.36, shattering the 800 level for the first time since the spring of 1990.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which tracks the performance of 30 blue-chip stocks, had been hovering around the 800 level since early May. But Wednesday's sell-off was triggered by a variety of factors, including concerns about the global economy, rising interest rates, and uncertainties about the future of the U.S. economy.

Meanwhile, the Nasdaq composite index, which tracks the performance of smaller and technology-focused companies, also suffered a significant drop, falling 60.11 points, or 3.12%, to 1877.35.

"The market is definitely in a bearish phase," said Tom Stearns, a New York-based investment strategist. "There are a lot of factors at play, but the main driver is the global economy. We're seeing signs of a slowdown in China and Europe, and that's spilling over to the U.S."

Stearns said that the stock market had been under pressure for several weeks, with investors growing increasingly wary of the global economy. The latest economic data, which showed a slowdown in manufacturing and retail sales, added to the sense of unease.

"The market is always going to be volatile," Stearns said. "But the current environment is particularly challenging, and investors need to be prepared for more ups and downs."

Despite the recent sell-off, some investors remained optimistic, citing the presence of valuation support and the potential for a rebound in the coming months.

"I think we're seeing a lot of bargain hunters coming into the market," said John Flanders, a New York-based portfolio manager. "The valuations are attractive, and I expect we'll see a bounce back in the near future."

Flanders said that he was long on technology and healthcare stocks, which he believes will continue to perform well despite the current market conditions.

On Tuesday, the Federal Reserve announced that it would be raising interest rates by a quarter point, which some investors saw as a sign that the central bank was trying to cool down the economy and prevent inflation from heating up.

"The Fed's decision to raise rates is a positive sign," said Flanders. "It shows that they're mindful of the economy, and that they're willing to take action to keep things in check."

Despite the recent sell-off, the market has been relatively stable over the past few months, with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining over 10% since the start of the year.

"The market is still in a bullish phase," said Stearns. "We've been seeing a lot of strength in the technology and healthcare sectors, and that's likely to continue."

Stearns said that investors should be prepared for more volatility in the coming months, but that he remained optimistic about the overall outlook for the market.

"The economy is strong, and the fundamentals are sound," Stearns said. "I expect we'll see more ups and downs, but I think the long-term outlook is positive."

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average had fallen by 11.96 points, or 1.43%, to close at 838.32, the lowest level in five months.

Rex Harrison returns to 'My Fair Lady' role

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rex Harrison, who recently won in his billing fight while preparing for the West End production of "My Fair Lady," has indicated he will play Professor Henry Higgins in the London stagings of the role.

"I don't think the role is ever going to get tired of Higgins," Harrison said in an interview with UPI in a break from rehearsal with the Thetford Theater Company. "The part is too good to觉得很.”

"He certainly was not the sort of person who was going to get tired of playing the part," Harrison added. "He was always looking for new challenges and new ways of playing the role."

"As long as I can continue to bring something new to the character, I will always be interested in playing him."

Harrison started acting in 1934 in Liverpool. He made his U.S. debut in the 1950s and has been featured in numerous films and television shows. He is known for his comedic and dramatic skills. He received an Academy Award for Best Actor for his role in "Omar Sharif" in 1957.

"History of rock 'n' roll preserved in archives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A history of rock 'n' roll will be preserved in archives, according to the Grateful Dead, the famous rock band. The band recently announced that they will contribute to a program being funded by the National Endowment for the Arts that will create an archive and museum to preserve the history of rock 'n' roll.

"We have a rich history that we want to make sure is preserved for future generations," said lead singer Jerry Garcia. "We want to share our story and the history of rock 'n' roll with everyone.

"It's important to preserve this history, and we think it's a great honor to be a part of this project."

A new Melissa Manchester emerges

By Bob Doering

KINGFISHER, OKLAHOMA - A new Melissa Manchester is emerging, one who is no longer the ultra-cerebral, ultra-serious, ultra-sensuous singer/songwriter/eraist that audiences once knew and loved. She is, instead, a more mature, more relaxed, more casual woman who is comfortable with her image and her life and has a new song to express it.

Manchester's first album in years, "Loved," has been released through Warner Bros. Records. The album features 10 songs, including the title cut, "Loved," which was written by Manchester and produced by Shep Gordon. The album also includes "I'm Not the Only One," a duet with George Michael, and "Don't Cry Old Man," a tribute to her father.

Manchester's sound has evolved over the years, from the soft, vulnerable ballads of her early albums to the more upbeat, dance-oriented tracks on her later releases. Her voice has matured, too, becoming richer and more expressive.

The album has received mixed reviews, with some critics praising Manchester's return to form and others criticizing the lack of commercial appeal. But overall, the album is a solid effort that shows Manchester's growth as an artist.

Manchester's decision to work with Gordon on the album was a significant one, as it marked a departure from her previous collaborations with producers like Glen Ballard and John Rich. Manchester has said that working with Gordon allowed her to explore new sounds and approaches, and that it was a necessary step in her artistic evolution.

Manchester, who grew up in Oklahoma, began her music career in the late 1970s, releasing her first album, "Melissa Manchester," in 1977. She went on to have several hits, including "Don't Cry Old Man," "I'm Not the Only One," and "Loot." She also appeared on the television show "Dynasty," where she played the character of Vivian Ward.

Manchester's appearance on "Dynasty" led to a successful film career, with roles in films such as "Heartbeeps," "True Friends," and "Final Love." She also recorded several successful singles, including "Loot," "I'm Not the Only One," and "Don't Cry Old Man.

Manchester returned to music in the late 1990s, releasing the album "Loved" and appearing on several television shows and films. She has continued to record and perform, with a focus on her own material and her own voice.

Manchester's music is often heavily influenced by her Oklahoma roots, and she has a unique sound that is both pop and country. Her voice is strong and powerful, and she has a talent for writing and producing that is evident in her work.
