OKLAHOMA CITY — A limited partnership in the form of two million shares of stock in the partnership was created Monday between First National Bank, the city's largest bank holding company, and Downtown Galleria, owned by Union National Bank, to develop and market the Galleria. The agreement calls for First National and the Galleria to share in the profit from the development and loan the bank's name to the Galleria.

The agreement was conceived as a means of stabilizing downtown Oklahoma City's retail trade and generating new revenue for the bank.

"Downtown is the most important area of our city," said John J. Zook, chairman, president and chief executive officer of First National. "We are pleased to be associated with the Galleria and to share in the profits it generates."

Nightclub's License Is Revoked

The Nebraska State Liquor Control Board on Monday revoked the liquor license of a South Omaha nightclub that has been the target of complaints about noise and drug use.

The move came after the board heard arguments from attorneys for the club, which operates under the name "Tina's," and from an attorney for the city of Omaha.

The club's license was revoked "because the premises were used in violation of the liquor laws," according to a statement from the board.

The club was cited for "deceptive and hazardous conduct,"" an attorney for the club told the board.

The club's attorney said the club's license had been suspended "by order of the board." He said the club had been "operating with a suspended license for at least a month."

Burges plans second try at NFL

First almost think this kind of look was in the NFL.
First there was Great Burges, a hard-running back who turned heads and always amazed with his abilities. He was a good runner, good cutter. He was a good athlete. He was a good blocker. He was a good football player. He was a good person. He was a good citizen. He was a good man.

But great things come in threes. And that's what happened to Great Burges, a running back who turned heads and always amazed with his abilities. He was a good runner, good cutter. He was a good athlete. He was a good blocker. He was a good football player. He was a good person. He was a good citizen. He was a good man.

Miller wants a trade

By Bob Herson

Jerry Miller, the Bills' leading receiver, changed his tune this week and said he would be satisfied with the Bills if he were traded. Miller has been in the news a lot lately because of his potential trade. He has been asked to play for the Bills even though he is ranked among the top 10 receivers in the league.

"I'm not saying I want to be traded," said Miller. "I'm just saying I want to be traded. I want to be traded." Miller has been a key player for the Bills in recent games. He has scored two touchdowns and caught four passes in the last two games. He has also averaged 12.5 yards per catch.
