IRAQ MOVES 50 MILES INTO IRAN

By Dan Williams

IRAQ - The Iraqi army launched a major offensive on the Iranian border early today, sending at least 20,000 troops into Iran in a renewed effort to free Iranian prisoners. The operation has raised the number of prisoners captured by the Iraqis to more than 10,000.

The Iraqis said they have surrounded and captured a major Iranian town, Khorramshahr, and have taken control of the town. They also said they have captured several Iranian villages and have blocked several Iranian highways.

The operation is part of a larger military campaign aimed at capturing more territory on the Iranian border. The Iraqis have been trying to increase their control over the area for several years, and the operation is expected to continue for several weeks.

The operation is likely to have a significant impact on the region, as the Iraqis have been able to increase their control over the area and have been able to capture several important towns and villages.

The operation is also likely to have an impact on the economy of the area, as the Iraqis have been able to capture several oil fields and have increased their control over the area.

Ellen Burstyn (right) plays a woman who gains the power of psychic healing after a near brush with death in "Resurrection," opening Fri- day at the MacArthur Park, North Park and Park Terrace theaters.

Technique quality no worry

By Gary Haynes

Small things are particularly good or spectacularly bad, photographers often feel, about commercial advertising. And "Resurrection," directed by Larry Peck, is a prime example of this thinking about the medium.

Quality in an ad is a question of degree -- the more professional the photography, the more believable the product, the more likely it is to sell.

There are no secrets. At the production, a photographer needs a good, solid, solid light. And the same goes for the guidelines for good photography. But, in the end, the film is the final word. The film is the product, the film is the selling tool. And the film is what the audience sees.

"Resurrection" raises the issue of quality in advertising and the need for more professional standards in the industry. The film features Ellen Burstyn as a woman who gains the power of psychic healing after a near brush with death. The story is told through flashbacks and dreams, creating a sense of mystery and suspense. The film is a masterpiece of visual storytelling, with its rich colors and dynamic compositions. The characters are well-developed, and the acting is superb. Overall, "Resurrection" is a must-see film for anyone interested in the power of storytelling and the importance of quality in advertising.

Promoters sing recession blues

United Press International

Inflation and recession have struck a sour chord in the rock ’n’ roll industry.

As production costs spiral, concert promoters find themselves chasing an increasingly selective ticket-buying public — its frugality borne by a considerable drop in disposable income.

“People are being a lot more careful about the acts they’re buying tickets for,” says Roy Dubrow, of Seattle’s Aladdin Productions. “Promoters can’t get away with selling an act for the sake of it, people aren’t going to buy tickets anymore just for loud noise.

Typically they’re buying onto their dollars a lot longer, getting choosier about who they’re going to spend it on. They want a quality product.”

Industry sources agree a handful of “superstar” acts have easily weathered the slump.

New Jersey-based promoter John Scher recently put together an Eagles concert in the Meadowlands Sports Complex that drew more than 77,000 people at $15 a head.

But if such figures suggest they’re merely whistling in the dark, promoters point to a considerable falloff in scores of “marginal” acts that far outnumber the sure-draws.

“One of Yukon on Cornell Drive. Several Oklahoma musical acts will be featured on the patriotic program. Tickets are $4 single and $6 for couples.
